Chapter 1 by Neolillz

In the land of Ezanjaus supernatural was normal. Vampires walked the streets freely, Werewolves roaming the woods was normal and Griffins soaring in the sky was usual. Although this may seem like a place of perfect equality with different species, there were still the downfalls of the human world. Slavery, poverty, war. All the impurities that the human world suffered from.

Iagho Rejo was a slave, fledgeling. A fledgeling, in this land, was a term for a creature that was under 120 years old. This was the case because most creatures in Ezanjaus could live up to 10,000. In Iagho's case, he was a vampire. The fact that he was a slave was another downfall. He was the vampire fledgeling slave for the master vampire king.

Being a slave for the kings was a job that was not really that desirable for it wasn't just the king that you served. It was the entire royal family. Including the king, his two wives, his seven daughters and his two sons.

Then again, it is always a problem when you have been told, by one of the sisters, to call another sister ugly or you will be whipped. Then again if you call that sister ugly to avoid whipping she will tell the overseer and he will whip you. Iagho ended up in the overseer's office being practically whipped to death.

The interesting thing was that he most likely would have been whipped to death if the overseer hadn't been interrupted by the second son of King Rolande and Queen Valkyrie. His name was Senka.

He told the overseer to hand lagho over to him. Senka was the younger son so he didn't have as much authority over the castle staff but a simple 'you're fired' threat, did the job. What lagho found funny was what Senka's reply to him asking why he wanted him for was.

"You're my Little One now..."
